This was the best overall production in this year's entries. The cover was impressive, and demonstrated great care in the colour choice of the cover illustration and the paper stock on which it was printed. The frontispiece print, and other illustrations added a welcome richness to the text. The illustrations were well integrated with the beautiful type, especially with the double page spread on pages 20-21. The type and printing were crisp, yet warm and approachable. A lovely production.

The photography in this book is stunning, and is beautifully presented and printed on wonderful paper. One only wishes equal care had been given to the captions and typography. All are well done but none are exceptional; typographically there is nothing new or exciting here. The map is not well integrated into the text and the entire production lacks continuity. This is especially true of the binding, in which extreme care has been taken to produce an ambitious cover in leather, but it reveals nothing of the stunning contents of the book. Why not showcase what is the best feature of a remarkable production?
