

KEEPING WATCH AT THE END OF THE WORLD

While the design is consistently beautiful and shows not a single wrong decision, it still manages to be secondary to the poetry, which appears all the more enticing. The jacket and endpapers are particularly exquisite elements, every one of which works together to compel you to read this book.

THE BRIEF REINCARNATION OF A GIRL

This boasts a beautiful cover, a fantastic illustration, and a very sensitive design invigorated by the audacious use of colour and a wrap-around jacket.

MY BANJO & TINY DRAWINGS

One judge said the open design “just makes me happy.” The engaging visuals (such as punctuation at the top of each page), a perfectly chosen typeface, and an impressive interaction between the designer and the author distinguish this coverable book.

THE YEAR OF OUR BEAUTIFUL EXILE

The way the visuals are incorporated into the design is very pleasing to the eye, and shows the hand of an experienced designer.

CLEAN SAILS

A “very cheeky” book with a “buzzy,” low-tech feel that complements the complex typewriter-based poetry.

A REVISION OF FORWARD

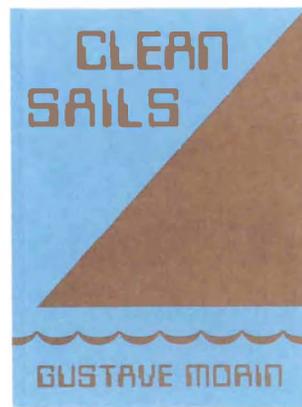

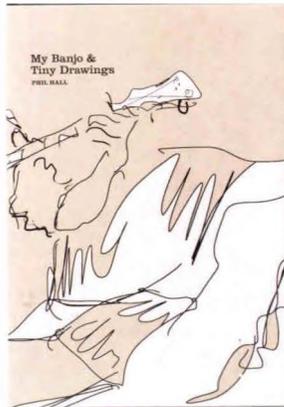

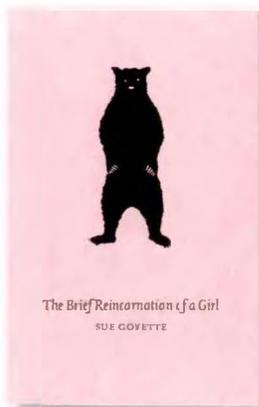

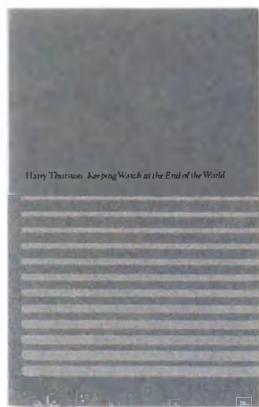

A fine example of a trade poetry book that took some risks, no doubt inspired by the poems within, and succeeded. The use of black and white throughout is striking.

ROM COM

A very accessible volume, kitschy but not precious, with a cute cover and brilliant paper dolls of the authors.

WE CAN'T EVER DO THIS AGAIN

The cover offers a fresh and clever perspective on a mundane object, while the interior shows skill and good judgement.

Même si elle révèle sa beauté tout au long du livre, et qu'elle ne présente aucune mauvaise décision, la conception graphique réussit toujours à être secondaire à la poésie, ce qui est d'autant plus attrayant. La jaquette et les pages de garde sont des éléments particulièrement raffinés qui vont de pair pour nous inciter à lire ce livre.

THE BRIEF REINCARNATION OF A GIRL

Avec fierté, ce livre arbore sa jolie couverture, ses illustrations fantastiques et sa conception graphique très délicate dynamisée par son utilisation audacieuse de la couleur et d'une jaquette de style enveloppant.

Un des juges a dit du design ouvert de ce livre qu'il le « rendait tout simplement heureux ». Les éléments visuels stimulants (comme la ponctuation en haut de chaque page), le choix parfait de la typographie, et l'interaction impressionnante entre la conceptrice et l'auteur amènent ce livre convoité à se démarquer.

THE YEAR OF OUR BEAUTIFUL EXILE

L'habileté de ce concepteur chevronné se reflète dans la façon dont les éléments visuels sont incorporés dans le design qui est tout à fait réjouissant pour l'œil.

CLEAN SAILS

Un livre plutôt insolent avec un côté vibrant et à l'aspect rudimentaire qui vient compléter la complexité de sa poésie de style « machine à écrire ».

A REVISION OF FORWARD

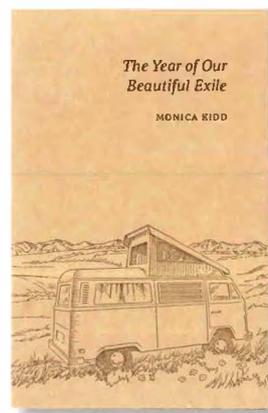

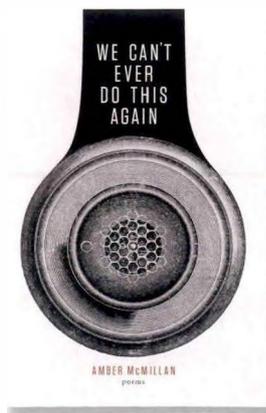

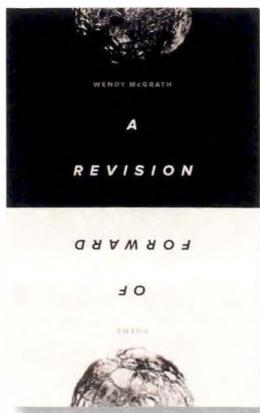

Un bel exemple de recueil de poèmes commercial qui prend des risques avec succès, sans doute inspiré par certains de ses propres poèmes. L'utilisation du noir et du blanc tout au long du livre est saisissante.

ROM COM

Un ouvrage très accessible, « kitsch », mais pas vulgaire, avec une mignonne couverture et d'adorables auteurs.

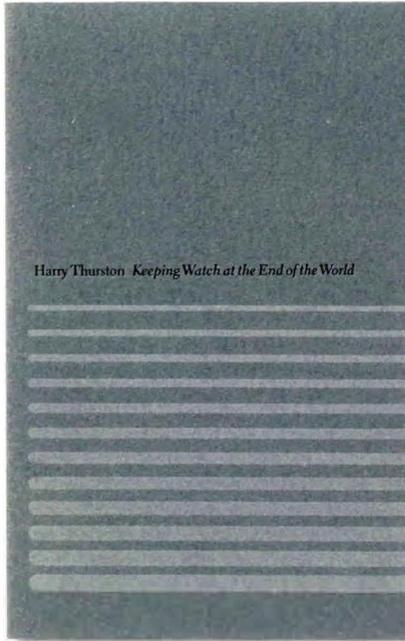

WE CAN'T EVER DO THIS AGAIN

La couverture propose un objet banal sous un angle rafraîchissant et ingénieux, pendant que l'intérieur fait preuve d'habileté et de bon jugement.

SUMMER READING.

I have wasted my life
—J.K.S. WRIGHT

The read pages of poetry curl up in the dampness of July like leaves where aphids have fed

These days so like the fugional mornings of childhood, so green, so ready to begin—to let the sun burn in

These are the measures of our days
the read and the unread, the living and the dead—
the read and the unread

This one morning like no other, or one half-remembered.

days divided by the crows' casing, the little birds perched outside our windows commencing to sing

IRRADIATED

Week one, on the road to the hospital to quell the rebellion of my own cells, conspirators plotting to bring down my kingdom of one, and what do I see but an uprising of green: pale poplar, deeper verdancies of spruce and balsam fir, and new grass of every hue, each shade an emblem of May, this greenest month

I should be thinking of the invisible teachers within me (and I am) but more compelling are the distractions, what I can see out there—more biology that has no need of me, but aspires to a kind of common immortality.

This day brings the uncommon: not the crow crowning the totem of a dead tree, the burn of a black bear cub, appearing, disappearing into the thin line of words along the highway in edam. The pair of Grackles cropping the new blades.

Poverty was taunting the girl's father's fire. Did he warn a train in bits, poverty asked and the father fizzled in his sea. Order, the judge yelled. Did he want some pants? The father slumped and the fire in his crotch flared. Order, the judge yelled and the father sat up, rising to hide the fire from the judge who had already warned him about open flames in his courtroom. Poverty gobbled up the father's shame for its salt. The lawyer asked the doctor if the girl had exhibited other behaviour that warranted increasing her dosage from a single pill to an entire orchestra complete with the several trumpets she had been given to drown out her own loudness.
 She suffered anxiety, the doctor told the jury, as well as rage and low self-esteem. Objection, the courtroom yelled, to which the lawyers objected and the judge pounded on the doctor's prescription pad for order and then called a recess so he could take a piss and look out of the parking lot from his office. Often, he'd been described as being a little Zen.

27

The jury went to their room to stretch their legs.
 One of the jurors wanted to know if anyone else had seen the doctor clear her throat of her siblings and their trophies, but the rest of them had been watching the father tend his fire. They agreed that he was a guy who needed professional help. No wonder the girl couldn't sleep.
 One of the jurors said, her father was literally on fire. That had to bother her, they agreed. And the fire is in his crotch, another juror exclaimed, and he's feeding it with young girls dressed to play tennis. And those short shorts, a juror whistled, that guy needs a hobby. One of the jurors cleared her throat of her grandmother's crochet hook and offered that she once thought she was a turtle. They all looked at her.
 A turtle? That's nothing, another juror added, he used to think he was a backhoe. A backhoe? Because the door was closed, poverty couldn't come in and turn off the faucet. One of them thought that they were reincarnated and used to be a saint.
 One of them wished he could have been blue, he thought blue was the best colour when he was a kid. Another thought the donkey on his father's farm could understand him when he talked.
 The juror recounted how the donkey's eyes were a cross between Jesus and Santa and the donkey forgave him for everything including stealing his sister's money the time she lost her tooth.

Recruitment is young's codar says when I grow up I in posse to be a fence-sail

Spring is a new leaf its ambition is slight its embarrassing is the sun
in an email to another pedophile

Said says you know's hot you can do with your Latin phony names its atrocious dates in me the undisciplined gets personal

SONNET XVI

Open your eyes and face me: Draw your free hands from your pockets and turn your pirate jaw down more.
Sink every penny on the long shirt and quit staring, it's a psycopathic.
Unfasten these high horses and give up the paper route. Of that I'm sure Rake up those newsprint, science-fair remodels and build them higher.
Think about the kids and stop bitching so loudly so longly into half-hung closet doors between adjoining rooms.
Talk better. Say more things, and be easier on people. I'm not mad.

THE ADULTERER

On particularly busy days I leave the washing up until the end of the day, into the evening, because by then the air is cool and the soap-water in the sink remains warm to the touch. The house is quiet save for the low, hand-held radio heard from the neighbour's yard, and with the window open and the sink position red where it is, a breeze will wind in and wrap itself around my feet and up my legs, along my back. I line the drying rack with the rinsed plates first, then cups, then my pots or big pans on top. Alongside everything goes the cutlery.
Not a loony, but often I have used the broken blue mug in the morning and have left it all day in the sink to be washed last of all. The truth is it can't really be used – whatever poison just falls back out through the crack.

BUFFALO JUMP

Here, in the land of rocks and empty sand, the river tugs lazily at its long johns.
Turkey vultures skulk in their ominous capes, bones lie belly up to the sun.

She presided here as a girl chasing horses and little feet, Sixty years later, a husband gone and a daughter, and still the plaintive smile of the sky.

She became weightless with time.
Her bird's legs gobbled the cliffs and her mind grew ravenous for Latin.
We went to her as children would, hoping,
as if walking were a prayer.

Until a little bomb dropped in the vault of her skull, left her in a chair
in a room, in a house

The wind paces
just outside the window.
