ALPS Award for Outstanding Service goes to Todd Mundle of Simon Fraser University.

By Colleen Bell, University of the Fraser Valley and Susan Paterson, UBC

Todd Mundle of SFU was the recipient of this year's ALPS Award for Outstanding Service. The award is presented to an academic public service librarian whose outstanding service has made a positive impact to students, faculty or colleagues in BC.

Todd, nominated by Lynn Copeland, Dean of Library Services/University Librarian at SFU, was singled out for his leadership role in a number of key building renovations successfully revitalizing the SFU Library on a tight budget. His public service background and his commitment to collaboratively working with front line staff helped create a library building that works for students and contributes to their success.

It reminds us all of the importance of "Library as Space" when serving our patrons. Congratulations Todd!
