

Letter from the Editors

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce the release of the 2015 Educational Review issue. We greatly appreciate all the students and faculty who contributed to the 2015 issue as an author or reviewer. As the Ed Review enters its 9th year in publishing, we are constantly looking for new ways to engage with our authors beyond the pages of our journal.

In the New Year, the Ed Review will continue to feature independent scholarship from graduate students and community members in the Faculty of education, while also expanding the scope of our mission by featuring the work of our faculty's many research centers.^[1] Specifically, we'd like to know a) what are the pressing issues in your area of research? And b) what is your research team doing to address those issues? If you would like to know more about how you can promote your research in our next issue, please contact us at sfuedreview@gmail.com. Through sharing of common research interests and other forms of scholarship, the Ed Review hopes to increase the visibility of our faculty's research endeavours and foster collaborations and networks between graduate students and faculty members.

We'd also like to take this opportunity to announce the newest member of our editorial team. Welcome Poh Tan! Poh is pursuing a second doctorate degree in Curriculum Theory and Implementation and we look forward to working with Poh on new projects in 2016.

We look forward to bringing you new content in the next Ed Review issue!

Editorial Team

Dominic Trevisan
Matthew Kruger-Ross
Poh Tan
Marco Espinoza